The Desert Song

—BY—
VIRGINIA MORRIS
Copyright 1929 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"The Desert Song" is a Warner Bros. picture of the story by Otto Harbach, Laurence Schwab, Oscar Hammerstein, 2nd, and Frank Mandel.

Old Hassi nodded. He remembered the night well, remembered the masked figure who had stepped into their camp and shouted defiantly, "Give me twenty of your young men who are not afraid to die! And if the law is wrong, we'll overturn the law!"

"I was only a boy indeed," continued the Red Shadow, "but I dreamed of saving the people of Morocco from injustice. When I returned to Fez, they forced me to resign from the army. I acted as if that blow had made me stupid, almost half-witted. I spent all my time picking wild flowers and so they searched high and low for the Red Shadow, never suspecting that he was the stupid, timid boy living right in their midst."

Then complications had arisen. General Fontaine died and the Red Shadow's own father, General Birabeau, was sent out from France to command the post at Fez. He had come with one purpose uppermost in his mind—to wipe out the Red Shadow. How was his son, Pierre, to meet this situation? Could he betray the people he had learned to love? He could not. And yet it was no less difficult to keep his parent from suspecting that his boy was an enemy of the French.

"So I continued to play the fool," he went on, "and I succeeded in deceiving my father. Now because he thinks I am a weakling he hates me. That is bad enough, but to see Margot despise me too! Why, I came to Morocco to show Margot I was a man!"

Back among the tents there came a scurry of excitement. A volley of guttural oaths filled the night as a dozen of the Red Shadow's men dragged in a prisoner caught by the sentry. He was thrown unceremoniously in front of the fire—five feet of insignificance dressed in bulging riding breeches fashioned out of enormous checks. It was hard to say which was the most ludicrous, his outlandish clothes, his mustache on his tiny face, pale with consternation.

Hassi drew his sword, "Let's kill him! He's a spy! I'm after blood!" The stranger's squeaky voice protested, "Well, don't look at me, I'm anemic!"

The menacing face of Hassi terrified him. "You can't kill me, I'm an American! I'm no spy, I'm only the society correspondent for the Paris Herald. I didn't even mean to come here. Early this morning I went out horseback riding with my friend, Pierre Birabeau. Later he gave me the slip and I thought he had headed this way."

At this point the Red Shadow came forward. He spoke in the Red Shadow's native tongue. What he said meant that the prisoner should be released.

CHAPTER III.

Like most girls who have read story books and believed in them Margot Donvalet was beginning to find life a bit disillusioning when she came to actually living it. She had arrived in Fez expecting to find there all the high romance of the sentimental novel. Her Paul would be a dashing hero in his uniform of the Foreign Legion. He would sweep her into his arms and carry her away on horseback, far out into the desert, and there would be a wild courtship under the Morocco moon. But instead, she had made the disappointing discovery that Paul was first of all the soldier and only the lover when there was nothing else to interest him. His devotion to military duty made him more of a machine than a dashing knight.

He left her alone a good share of the time and she found it necessary to rely on inconsequential flirtations with the officers or tedious conversations with General Birabeau's son, Pierre, who worshipped her at a respectful distance but who scarcely qualified as a suitor since Margot regarded him as a mollycoddle. There were no other women at the garrison except Susan, the secretary and sweetheart of Bennie Kid, the Paris Herald reporter, and Azuri, a dark-skinned native girl who was not officially one of the household but who lurked about at all hours when she might glimpse Captain Fontaine.

Margot and Susan were chatting together when Bennie returned from his desert adventure. Susan felt gratefully into his arms, then babled him with solicitous pats and anxious questions. He waved her aside. A man could not bother himself with love when he had just risked his life among the dreaded Rifis themselves. "Bennie did you see the Red Shadow?" Susan queried.

"Yes—and what a tough guy," Bennie replied. "Why he came riding into camp on a tiger, using a rattlesnake for a whip. And because he was hungry he ordered a live cow. When it was brought in he took out his sword and cut off a slice for himself."

Susan's eyes were popping. "Rav, Bennie?" "It was the rawest thing I ever saw done to a cow!" he assured her. Just then Pierre Birabeau appeared in the doorway. Margot hadn't missed him for Pierre always took a nap in the afternoon. To Margot he was a nice boy though somewhat of a bore. Would she not have been astonished could she have watched him a minute before when he had hastily stuffed a scarlet bur-noose into the heavily carved chest in his bedroom? Yet he had not been cautious enough, for Azuri, crouched behind a chair like some little animal, had seen him.

Pierre ventured timidly toward Margot and handed her a small bouquet. "See Margot, I've got some lovely wild flowers for you!" The girl looked at him despairing-ly. "Wild flowers! Oh Pierre, why don't you go out and fight the Red Shadow? If only you would do one thing to make me proud of you!" Suddenly she caught sight of Captain Fontaine coming across the court yard. When he entered she greeted him ardently.

"What luck, Paul?" "Great luck, Margot! I nearly caught the Red Shadow. I found his secret hiding place and I've covered it with a concealed machine gun. Next time he goes there we'll mow him down."

"Bravo!" shouted General Birabeau who had arrived in time to hear Fontaine's confident boast.

"Oh, that's great!" put in Pierre. "But father, wouldn't it be funny if he didn't go there again?"

The General did not bother to answer his son and Pierre who was well accustomed to snubs, resumed silence. His father's interest was primarily in Paul. He had been watching the progress of his romance with Margot and had noted the soldier's neglect and the girl's dissatisfaction. For the sake of his friendship for Margot's father, General Birabeau sincerely desired her happiness. He saw a way of promoting it.

"A boat of the French Line stops here tonight, Paul," he told him. "It's just finishing a Mediterranean cruise. You and Margot might take the Bridal Suite and as Governor of the Post, I can marry you."

Margot interrupted. "As the bride, don't you think I deserve to be consulted?"

Paul laughed. "You could hardly be married in that riding habit, Margot!"

Margot tossed her head. "I don't suppose you thought that we two might go riding in the desert together!"

"You see, Paul," General Birabeau told him good humoredly, "Margot hoped you'd pick her up on your horse and carry her across the hot desert sands."

Perhaps Paul's sense of the romance was partially awakened. At any rate the plan for a hasty marriage appealed to him and he begged General Birabeau to make out his passport. Then he turned to the girl.

"Margot, I'll be back for my answer in five minutes. If it's no, I'll make you say yes!"

"There, Margot, there's romance for you!" remarked the General.

As Paul crossed the inner court, Azuri sneaked up beside him. He turned on her with a furious contempt.

"Azuri, you can't follow me like this."

She rubbed her sensuous body against him. "Lover, come with me tonight to the hills—and tomorrow morning in your arms, I will whisper to you the name of the Red Shadow!"

"I don't believe you. You don't know."

Azuri twined her arms about his neck and placed her warm dark cheek next to his. "Paul, I cannot give you up to this French woman!"

Fontaine wrenched himself free and taking the girl by the shoulders he threw her roughly to the ground. Her dark eyes flashed jealously as she rose slowly, showing her gleaming white teeth, and sneering.

"Azuri—that name means Uger claw. When she loves she loves for always and when she hates—she hates!"

And Azuri crept out toward the desert, leaving this half-muttered threat ringing in Fontaine's ear.

Praise For Judicial System Of Canada

Former Rhode Island Judge Speaks Appreciatively Of Administration

Technicalities are not available to the criminal here in Canada, said Hon. Thomas Lee, former Judge of the District Court of the State of Rhode Island, in an interview at the Banff Springs Hotel. Speaking in the most appreciative terms of the administration of justice in Canada, he pointed out that in his country, with 48 different sovereign states each with their own laws, endless confusion arose. In making a comparison of judicial systems, he cited the promptitude with which juries were usually selected in Canada, and added: "I myself have tried a case when a week was consumed, and I know of cases where three weeks were required."

The election of judges by the people is unsatisfactory, in my opinion. When in California they are elected for a six-year term, they are forced to electioneer while in office, a practice that is not conducive to impartiality. Judge Lee stressed the amicable relation extant in the English-speaking world and predicted an established peace.

Russia Faces Bread Shortage

Long Winter Has Killed Bulk Of Wheat Crop

Russia is faced with another bread shortage this year due to the fact that winter crops in the Ukraine and the Caucasus have been killed to a considerable extent by the long winter, which lasted into the first weeks of May.

Reports received from the Ukraine tell a tragic story of how the peasants will have to reseed their fields, and add that the wheat crop cannot be replanted because it is too late, which means that Russia will produce very little wheat during the coming year.

The situation is better in the Crimea, but most reliance for the wheat crop was placed in the Ukraine, which always has supplied the bread needs of Russia and produced a surplus for Germany export. Since the Ukraine suffered a crop failure last year it is presumed the present failure of the winter crop will compel the Soviet Government to buy bread abroad. One of the difficulties of this solution lies in the fact that Russia will have to pay for imported bread in foreign currency, which is expected to have an adverse effect on the value of the Russian ruble.

Urgent measures to reseed the damaged fields are now being taken by the Government, which is supplying the peasants with seeds, on condition that a certain percentage of the crop be sold to the Government in advance under contract. The peasants will receive food and forage relief from the Government during the summer months until the results of the new crop can be estimated.

The Oil For the Athlete.—In rubbing down, the athlete will find Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil an excellent article. It renders the muscles and sinews pliable, takes the soreness out of them and strengthens them for strains that may be put upon them. It stands pre-eminent for this purpose, and athletes who for years have been using it can testify to its value as a lubricant.

Canada Honey Exports

Of the total honey production in Canada last year of 22,489,908 pounds valued at $2,785,467, 1,246,017 pounds valued at $104,200 were exported. The Netherlands was the biggest buyer, taking 517,370 pounds and the British Isles were next with 319,818 pounds.

Danish Dairy Exhibition

National Show This Year Had Largest Display Ever Held

At the Danish national dairy exhibition held in Copenhagen recently, there were exhibits of butter from no less than 1,367 dairies, and cheese from 743 dairies.

It was the largest display of its kind ever held in Denmark, and it is doubtful whether any other country could have produced such a numerous collection of samples of butter of such uniform quality despite the fact that they were made in so many hundreds of different dairies. Besides butter and cheese the exhibition also comprised condensed milk, export cream, milk powder, ice cream, dairy preparations and dairy machinery.

The quality marks given to the butter by the adjudicators showed a high degree of uniformity. From 90 to 95 per cent. of the butter exhibits were acknowledged as being fully up to the requisite standard, and the cheese exhibits were also characterized by the experts as most satisfactory.

Visitors to the exhibition came from no less than 24 foreign countries.

MADE HER BABY PLUMP AND WELL

Nothing makes a mother more grateful than a benefit conferred upon her child. Mothers everywhere who have used Baby's Own Tablets for their children speak in enthusiastic terms of them. For instance, Mrs. Zepherin Lavoie, Three Rivers, Que., writes:—"Baby's Own Tablets are a wonderful medicine for little ones. They never fail to regulate the baby's stomach and bowels and make him plump and well. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all mothers to do likewise." Most of the ordinary ailments of childhood arise in the stomach and bowels, and can be quickly banished by Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets relieve constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers, expel worms, allay teething pains and promote healthful sleep. They are guaranteed to be free from injurious drugs and are safe even for the youngest and most delicate child. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from 'The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Little Helps For This Week

"Godliness with contentment is great gain."—1 Timothy vi. 6.

My crown is in my heart, not on my head;

Not decked with diamonds and Indian stones; Not to be seen; my crown is called Content.—Shakespeare.

A contented mind is always joyful; but joy like this is but religion. The rich and poor alike, having contentment, enjoy perpetual rest.

—Buddha.

I am always contented with that which happens, for I think that what God chooses is better than what I choose.—Epictetus.

Spare the children from suffering from worms by using Miller's Worm Powders, a most effective vermifuge with which to combat these insidious foes of the young and helpless. It is an excellent worm destroyer, and when its qualities become known in a household no other will be used. The medicine acts by itself, requiring no purgative to assist it, and so thoroughly that nothing more is desired.

Radio Difficult To Transmit In Forest

Mysterious Barriers Exist Largely When Trees Are Sappy

When radio messages are received with comparative ease in the Arctic, and the long and short waves of electrically energized ether are received in mines deep underground, it is startling to find that difficulty is encountered in establishing radio communication in the forest. There are mysterious barriers that exist in the forest, the transmission of radio energy being affected to an unknown extent by what is called the absorption of trees. This seems to occur in spring, summer, and fall when the trees are sappy. With all the advances made by radio, it is still necessary for the protectors of our forests to use the telegraph and telephone.

Wise mothers who know the virtues of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator always have it at hand, because it proves its value.

To Explore Baffin Land

Donald MacMillan To Head Expedition To Northern Lands

Donald B. MacMillan, explorer in an address has briefly outlined plans for his projected expedition into the Arctic this summer.

The schooner Bowdoin will leave from Wiscasset Harbor, June 22.

The summer will be devoted to exploration of unknown spots in Labrador and Baffin Land. He expects to return in September.

The party will work among the Nascope Indians, whose hostility to white men was overcome on a previous expedition, when they were assisted through a period of famine. Plans include a study of the great ice cap in Baffin Land, of which little is known, Commander MacMillan said.

A Strange Cargo

One of the strangest cargoes ever to be shipped on an aeroplane arrived at Croydon airport recently. When the large air freighter pulled up at the hangars, the load inside proved to be twelve monkeys, and a baby bear. They were shipped to a private animal dealer in London, from the East Indies, the distance from Amsterdam to Croydon being covered in the air freighter.

Making Full Payment

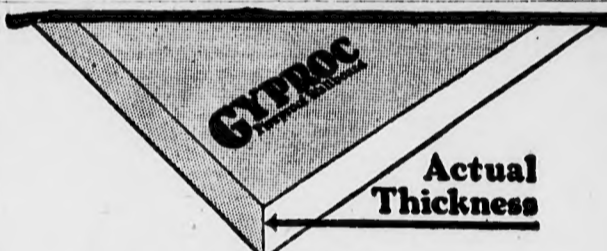

Government Proposes To Meet All Claims Made For Separation Awards

The government proposes to make full payment with interest of all the reparation awards made by Commissioner James Friel, who investigated claims for compensation for losses sustained during the late war.

This was announced in the House of Commons by Hon. Fernand Rinfret, secretary of state. In making his announcement, Mr. Rinfret pointed out that while the bill before the House provided for only two and a half millions, it was proposed to put a further amount in the supplementary estimates to complete the sum required for full payment.

After some discussion, the bill as amended passed through the committee and was given third reading.

Love is blind. That's why a man in love is unable to distinguish between an angel and a goose.

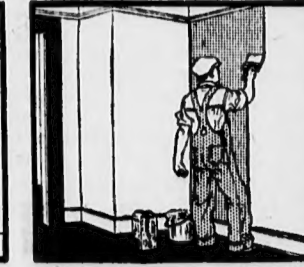

Ideal--Wherever alterations are required

IN many a fine, old-fashioned farm house there are rooms much larger than people today consider necessary. This available space can be partitioned off into extra rooms with very little work and at surprisingly small cost by the use of Gyproc Fireproof Wallboard. And the Gyproc walls and ceilings of the new rooms will match the older walls—no matter how solid they are—for seasoned rigidity, good looks and permanence.

Gyproc is the perfect building material for all modern farm construction—for homes, barns, poultry houses, granaries and garages. It is pure rock—cannot warp, shrink or burn. With the use of joint filler and tape its sections meet in a tight, flush joint that insures a flat, smooth surface and takes any decoration.

Broad, ceiling-high sections of Gyproc can be nailed directly to joists and studding—easy construction with a minimum of labor.

Beautiful decorative effects can be obtained by applying Alabastine, paint, paper or panels right over Gyproc walls and ceilings.

ECHOES OF GLEICHEN TWENTY YEARS AGO

Taken from the Call in 1909

Namaka has a lot of enterprising men and they are preparing to advertise that town extensively shortly.

Married—At Gleichen on Monday, June 1st, 1909, by the Rev. Mr. Castle, Mr. Arthur Vincent Coffe to Miss Edith Ellen Goldthorpe, both of Arrowood Creek.

John Clark, Jr., was in town Saturday and disposed of four of his young stallions and it is understood they were all raised on his ranch on Crew-foot creek.

Every effort is being made to make the Gleichen Dominion Day celebration greater and better than ever. The committee is already at work and has drafted out the list of events and are offering prizes amounting to four hundred dollars.

N. R. Dextans was in town Monday and said he had sold 100 head of cattle to H. Langlie, his nearest neighbor on Round creek, after advertising them in The Call. Both men consider it a very good joke that The Call should bring about the deal and also see the benefits of advertising.

Prince Lodge No. 41 I.O.O.F., since organizing in Gleichen a few months ago, have been making good and from the number of new members admitted since promise of a very strong lodge. A pleasant dance was given by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Allen Tuesday evening at their new residence on their farm five miles northwest of town. All who attended report thoroughly enjoying themselves and speak highly of the manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Allen entertained them.

Quite a number of Gleichen property owners are improving their homes by planting fruit and shade trees, berry bushes, making lawns, building and planting fences and doing other things to make their homes more pleasant and attractive. This is as it should be and it is to be encouraged as much as possible. It has been suggested by some that a prize be offered at the Gleichen Fair this year for the best garden and if acted upon should prove most interesting as it would be keenly contested by townspeople and some of the nearby farmers. Another prize might be offered with good results for the best cultivated farm within a certain distance.

Mr. Dingman was in Gleichen Friday afternoon to meet the Councillors when it was learned the petition being circulated by Secretary Johnston only needed another half dozen names to make up two-thirds of the ratepayers, the number required to complete the agreement between the Council and Mr. Dingman for drilling at Gleichen. It was agreed that he should return to Gleichen a week from next Friday to complete the agreement.

The Blackfoot Indians gave a big class entertainment in the Foresters' Hall one night last week consisting of their most picturesque dances, and were well patronized. The Indians were in full war paint and gave a show that would attract a crowd in any part of the world, so far as dress and noise are concerned. The wisdom of allowing the Indians the use of the hall is questionable, and in future it is probable they will have to choose an outdoor place for their shows.

One day last week the Gleichen Trading Co., tore down the building occupied by E. Ureh in order to continue the construction of their new block, and Mr. Ureh has moved into the new store next to the Company's building. This building is one of Gleichen's oldest land marks, if not the oldest. However the point is disputed or rather different old-timers tell the story differently. The building was built about twenty years ago and occupied by a Russian Jew, whose name is given as David Delvelaski, as a saloon, but who died some years ago. W. A. Allen now at Field, B. C., was the next occupant and latter W. Williams, D. C. Wishart, E. Griesbach, the Gleichen Trading Co., and J. A. Renaud all carried on business on the premises.

A local council of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends was organized here on Friday evening May 24th by Prov. Organizer J. H. Mallet of Vancouver. It will be known as Gleichen Council No. 203 and started off with a membership of 27. It is a fraternal insurance and sick benefit society admitting both ladies and gentlemen and the local meetings will be distinctly social in their character.

The organization will be completed on Friday evening next when several more candidates will be instructed in the secret work and the officers installed as follows:

P. C. P. J. Wilkie; C. G. J. E. Kilo; V. G. Mrs. Paul Wilkie; Rice, N. M. Mathison; Anti. Rice, Miss B. Larkin; Truss, Chas. W. Remley; Proctor, Miss A. Pinder; Marshall, H. M. McKie; Warden, Mrs. L. Arsel; Organist, Miss C. McArthur; Guard, J. M. Hughes; Secretary, J. E. Arsel; Medical Examiner, G. H. Farquharson, M.D.

E. Omar Carrington, who recently died at Montclair, N. J., at the age of 92 was a friend of horses. An apparently incurable invalid at the age of 50, Carrington took horseback riding, spending all the time possible in the saddle, which he gave credit for adding many years to his life.

When Henry Meyerowitz was arrested in New York City for driving past a red traffic light, he said his horse was colorblind. Sentence was suspended on condition that he keep the horse blindfolded.

England in the 12th Century

The development of the art of brewing, so we have traced it back to the days of old B.C. through the period of the Greeks, Romans, Spaniards, Gauls and Germans, all native subjects of the strength and purity of their ales, brewed from malt prepared by the monks with great skill and care.

William of Malinesbury informs us that in the reign of Henry II the monasteries were remarkable for the strength and purity of their ales, brewed from malt prepared by the monks with great skill and care.

Smoking forests or smoking chimneys — WHICH?

WE CAN'T HAVE BOTH

Over one-half of all Canada's industries depend on wood as a raw material. When the forests are destroyed mills must close down, railway carriages must suffer, trade must stagnate and prosperity must vanish.
